The FoNS Person-centred Cultures Programme:

What do I need to do?

Person-centred Cultures: A FoNS Development Programme

It's now a little under a month until the deadline for applications for this unique programme, which aims to support leaders of teams at the point of care, in any health or social care setting, anywhere in the UK to grow person-centred cultures in their workplace.

We welcome applications from diverse backgrounds

What does the programme include?

The programme includes in-person and online learning blocks (workshops) starting in September 2025 and ending in May 2026. In between the sessions, there are opportunities to collaborate with other participants and contact the FoNS facilitator for reflection, support and to sound out ideas. All this is fully funded, thanks to thoughtful funding from the Burdett Trust for Nursing.

What steps do you need to take?

You need support from within your organisation to release you to attend the sessions, to have time to plan and work with your team and to implement changes in practice. This means having conversations with your line manager and your executive level nurse. This internal support is essential to be able to really get the most out of the programme. But it needn't be daunting, let your passion for change and improvement shine through!

Where to find more information?

See below – we have drop in sessions which Giselle (the programme lead) is hosting. She'll tell you about the programme in more detail and there is an opportunity to ask questions.

Places are limited on the programme but if you don't apply, you'll never know!

Did you see...

Sheila's personal reflection on The Heart of Facilitation by Steve Dilworth?

It's well worth a read, that is both Sheila's blog and the book itself! Please do let us know your thoughts!

Maria and Mohammad talk about Resilience-based Clinical Supervision for social care

We'd like to thank Maria Luengas and Mohammad Khan for sharing their thoughts with us. At the time the video was recorded, Maria was delivering RBCS to managers in social care and the impact is so far-reaching! Re-igniting passion for care, supporting staff and residents, enabling managers to be the supportive leader they want to be! Please do watch!

And please do share with colleagues and connections in social care. Our fully funded RBCS programme for social care is available to registered nurses in social care in England.
